TRAFFIC IN TANGIER.

lt Is Large and Continuous and Apparently Conducted Under Difficultie

The traffic in Taugier is large and continuous. There is no footpath proper, and the foot passenger has often to pick his way among heavily laden donkeys and camels. Sometimes he is jostled by Jews in dark blue jelabs and skullcaps, the distinctive badges of their race; sometimes his progress is stopped by a burly negro slave, all in white or faded yellow, bearing on his head a tray of oread from the public bakehouse; sometimes he is swept into a miry corner by half a dozen of the sultan's cavalry, whose richly caparisoned steeds, flowing robes, flintlocks or spears, make up altogether an imposing spectacle. Perhaps also he may find himself confronted by a huge packing case borne down the street on the back of a donkey and supported on each side by men of color, who alarm the neighborhood with shouts

The most interesting sight in Tangier -at least, from an artistic point of view -is the sok, or large market place for country products. It lies immediately outside the wall in the upper part of the town and is approached through the old slave market, new converted into a shoeing forge. In the forenoon it is too crowded to be interesting, but in the afternoon, when business has somewhat slackened, scenes of varied interest may be observed. Yonder is a water carrier, with large goatskin bag slung over his shoulder, attracting your attention with the tinkle of a bell to the refreshing draft he offers. Here is a gaunt Arab from the Riff mountains, bareheaded, blanket draped and flashing eyed, interviewing with fierce and threatening gestures obdurate looking Jew, who is evidently demanding his pound of flesh. Near them is a country woman seated behind a small semicircle of milk jars. Her shriveled, wornout features can be discerned through the folds of her coarse haik, which she holds carelessly together with her left hand, while with her right she lifts the lid from one of the jars. - Good Words.

ANIMAL CURIOSITIES.

Tree Climbing Rabbits, Sheep Eating Parrots and Sheep That Love Snails.

It seems almost a stretch of the imagination to think of rabbits climbing trees. Yet in Australia many rabbits have somehow acquired the tree climbing habit, having been forced, on acother animals, to drop burrowing and imitate squirrels. An Australian sent on to England recently the two front feet of a rabbit that had been killed on an acacia, three yards from the ground, and he wrote in his letter that this was not at all a remarkable thing, and be had often found them, or at least the traces of their claws, on the bark of trees four, five and six yards high.

For a parrot to eat sheep is another remarkable thing, and yet the kea of New Zealand has become a sheep cater, having changed to this article of food from a purely vegetable diet. The kea has proved a serious source of annoy ance to the New Zealand herdsmen, and methods have been taken for the destruction of the species. These gay colored little birds will cat almost any kind of meat, but it is sheep that they prefer.

They have been known to kill as many as 200 in a single night and have done serious harm to the flocks. The tradition of the island is that at one tain their usual supply of vegetable ood and that in desperation they invaded the "drying rooms" and ate whatever came to hand, finding sheep meat agreeable. In feeland almost all the horses are fish eaters, for the reason that the grain is scarce there and fish is plentiful. In England sheep are known who delight in snails. The observation of this fact is not new; it dates back

It is well known that a large number of insectivorous birds become grain eaters whenever they find that they cannot procure their ordinary diet of insects. -New York World.

What Victoria Could Do.

As a matter of fact, our sovereigns have rarely taken any active part in polities since George III's time, they could still do some very astonishing things if they chose. The queen could dismiss every Tommy Atkins in our army, from the commander in chief to the youngest drummer boy. She could disland the payy in the same way, and sell all our ships, stores and arse nals to the first enstomer that came along. Acting entirely on her own re sponsibility, she could declare war against any fereign country, or make a present to any foreign power of any part of the empire. She could make every man, weman and child in the country a peer of the realm, with the right, in the case of males who are of age, to a seat in the house of lords.

With a single word she could dismiss any government that happened to be in power, and could, it is believed, pardon and Lberate all the criminals in our jails. These are a few of the things the queen could do if she liked, but it is not necessary to say that her majesty never nets in matters of state except on the advice of the government for the time being .-- London Tit-Bits,
